GEORGIAN WINE REGIONS

Georgia sits tucked between mountains and seas in Europe's easternmost corner, a land shaped by shifting rulers and diverse cultures. The different regions of Georgia each nurture their own traditions, stories, and identities—distinctive threads woven together through generations to form the country's rich cultural tapestry.

Home to one of the world's oldest wine cultures, each region's vineyards, climates and landscape produce wines with their own unique character—earthy and robust in the east, crisp and aromatic in the foothills, and rich with coastal influences in the west.

QVEVRI

Georgia is the cradle of wine, with 8,000 years of uninterrupted viticulture. Across its regions, wine has been made in egg-shaped clay vessels called Qvevri for millennia, a method so intrinsic to Georgian culture that it is recognised by UNESCO as a protected practice.

In this ancient process, grapes, skins and stems rest through winter inside the Qvevri, buried deep in the earth, allowing the wine to ferment naturally and steadily. The result is a distinctive style of wine, known for its layers of texture that reflect both the land and the generations of history behind it.

IMERETI

WEST-CENTRAL GEORGIA

In western Georgia, this historic wine region is shaped by misty hills, a cool, rain-fed climate, and soils of limestone and clay. Influenced by the Black Sea, its wines favour freshness and quiet elegance over power. Made gently in buried Qvevri, they tell a subtle story of balance, place, and ancient tradition.

KAKHETI

EAST GEORGIA

In eastern Georgia, Kakheti opens wide beneath the Caucasus, sun-drenched and dry. Long summers and rugged soils give rise to wines of depth and strength, shaped in the deep-buried Qvevri with time and patience. Here, wine speaks boldly — of heat and earth; rooted in ancient tradition, power and endurance.

CENTRAL GEORGIA

In central Georgia, Kartli lies between mountains and rivers, where cooler winds and shifting seasons slow the vine's rhythm. The climate is restrained, the soils varied, and the wines reflect this balance—fresh, poised, and quietly complex. Shaped in both Qvevri and cellar, Kartli tells a measured story, where tradition and refinement meet in calm harmony.

LESSER-KNOWN REGIONS

IN-AND-AROUND GEORGIA

Beyond Georgia's famous wine heartlands lie quieter regions where winemaking continues in a more intimate, almost hidden rhythm.

These lesser-known areas are shaped by local climates, small vineyard plots, and deep-rooted family traditions. Their wines often feel personal rather than polished—reflecting specific villages, soils, and microclimates instead of broad regional styles. In these places, experimentation and heritage coexist, offering expressions that are subtle, unexpected, and deeply tied to the land, rewarding those who look beyond the well-known names.

WORLD

CURATED WORLD WINES

from European blends, to American soils, to Australian grapes.*
